

MYSTERIOUS "SUB" SINKS ONE OF THE BRITISH TANKERS

Outraged Britain Spurred To Drastic Measures Against
"Phantom"

ENGINEER IS KILLED

Destroyer's Crew Believes Offender Has Been Sunk

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Spurring an outraged Britain to drastic new measures against the "phantom" submarine flotilla which has been harassing neutral ships in the Mediterranean, the sinking of a British tanker by a mysterious submarine was disclosed today.

The second engineer was killed and six members of the crew wounded when the tanker Woodford was torpedoed and sunk yesterday morning. Simultaneously with news of this latest incident by a "phantom" undersea craft, the crews of British destroyers reaching Gibraltar after a widespread search for the submarine which torpedoed H. M. S. "Havock" on Wednesday night, expressed belief the offender had been sunk.

This, however, was not borne out by official admiralty reports, which indicated that either the "mad dog" submarine had escaped or that more than one submarine was engaged in the predatory raids that have aroused Britain to fury.

Granzow Academy To Re-Open On Saturday

Alterations for the enlargement of the Granzow Dancing Academy, Bristol Pike at Croydon, are being rushed to completion to be in readiness for the fall opening Saturday. With the installation of the latest type of trappings, it is believed that the academy, now entering its third year, will be the best equipped and finest dancing studio in the Philadelphia-Suburban area.

The Academy will be under the personal direction of Miss Sara Granzow, who has recently returned from an extended stay in Washington, D. C., attending the convention of Dancing Masters of America, Inc. During the convention Miss Sara, as she is favorably known in the lower part of Bucks County, was admitted to membership of the exclusive organization, after passing the rigid qualifying examinations. As far as can be ascertained, Miss Sara is the first person in Bucks County to receive such an honor.

From the long list of dancing celebrities presented at the convention, Miss Granzow reported that she was particularly interested in the exhibitions of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Tarazoff, of New York; Gustav Holzer, of Germany, and Cor Klunkert, of Amsterdam, Holland. Mr. Tarazoff was one of Miss Sara's former teachers.

Among the great variety of new innovations in the esthetic art that will no doubt interest dance enthusiasts in the coming social season will be the new Viennese Waltz and the European Tango. "But so many intriguing dances and routines have been introduced this year," added Miss Sara, "that it is difficult to foretell just what the public will like most, however, I'm exceedingly enthusiastic with the outlook for the coming season."

Enrollment of students will take place at the Academy, Saturday, and classes will start Tuesday, with Mrs. Stanley, of Newportville, as the official pianist.

Rotary Members Enjoy A Session at The Seashore

Members of Bristol Rotary Club had two delightful days in Beach Haven, N. J., this week, where they were entertained at the Summer home of one of their number, John S. Roberts, Jr. Only four absentees were noted, when the dinner-meeting was participated in Tuesday evening; and 20 of the Rotarians remained at the resort until yesterday.

Making the trip on Tuesday in private cars, fishing was enjoyed during the afternoon, the boat "Chione" being used for the trip. The "Chione" was captained by L. A. Beer, with the first mate being William Roberts, Bristol. Frank Voit, Rotary president, was in charge of the business meeting at the Tuesday evening dinner in the Roberts residence. He presented to the gathering Burgess Clifford L. Anderson. A number of prominent residents of Beach Haven were guests at this affair. The guests included: Dr. William C. LeCompte, Bristol; George Anderson, Robert Osborne, George Dages, Floyd Crauner, Beach Haven, N. J. Mrs. Thomas Jaynes assisted Mr. and Mrs. Roberts in receiving the guests. The home was attractively decorated with cut flowers.

Some of the men who remained at the resort until yesterday went deep-sea fishing, catching a large number of bonitos; while a few enjoyed a search for clams. The first fish was caught by Lester B. Shoemaker; and the largest ones by Otto Grupp, Jr., Croydon; and Jesse C. Everitt, Hulmeville.

STATE TESTS ROAD SIGNS SHOWING SAFE SPEEDS

Try Out Curves for Maximum Speed Which Is Listed

MARKERS GREAT AID

By Warren Van Dyke
Secretary of Highways
HARRISBURG, Sept. 2.—Markers warning motorists the maximum speed at which curves can be rounded safely are the Department of Highways' latest innovation in highway safety.

The first of these speed limit indications will be seen along U. S. Route 111 from New Cumberland to the Maryland State Line, beginning today. If successful, the markers will be extended gradually to other major routes.

Numerals only, such as "20," "25," or "30," will be painted on present black and white signs which show sharp turns, intersections and other dangerous conditions ahead. These numerals will indicate the greatest speed the motorist should travel in making the curve.

U. S. Route 111 was selected for this experiment because of its numerous short vertical and horizontal curves. Drivers on this heavily traveled highway now will be protected against these hazards if they heed the markers which will be posted along the entire distance of 40 miles.

Driving conditions on this road below York may be changed later because of contemplated resurfacing and banking of curves. When this is done, the speed limit indications will be changed as may be found practicable.

Motorists will have no difficulty in discerning the numerals which will be five inches high, stenciled under the directional symbol. They should not be confused with route numbers which are painted on separate signs in the form of a shield and a keystone for U. S. and State routes, respectively.

Bad weather conditions, of course, should prompt the driver to drive slower than the speed designated.

The department determined the safe rate of speed around curves by having an experienced driver traverse the entire route with instructions to drive as fast as he could on curves but to remain entirely within the right lane of the road.

In reporting his observations, the driver said the fastest speed he could travel on many curves without entering on the center of the road or the left lane was between 30 and 35 miles.

Such a finding should be food for some thought. If a veteran driver, using a car in safe mechanical condition with new tires, and driving on a dry pavement in excellent weather, could not exceed that rate of speed safely, just think of the number of accidents and narrow escapes that must result at a faster speed when another car approaches from the opposite direction around the curve.

These markers should be a great aid in our constant campaign to reduce the highway toll which last year took 2411 lives. The motorist who obeys these signs is greatly reducing his chances of being involved in an accident with another car or ending his trip in a ditch or ravine.

As a member of Governor George H. Earle's Highway Safety Council, I have directed every agency of the Department of Highways to do its utmost to make driving safer. We are doing all we can to build safety into the highways by eliminating curves, straightening bends and reducing grades. The motorist can do his part in helping us make our highways fool-proof by reading and heeding the signs posted for his safety.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1937, by The Baltimore Sun)

The Views of Some Friends

—despite all that the purpose of Mr. Roosevelt to renew his effort is now generally recognized.

POLITICIANS, reporters and intimate friends who have conversed with him since adjournment agree that his desire remains undiminished and that he has neither abandoned his plan nor become convinced of his mistake. After his recent experience it is an amazing thing that a man supposedly as astute as the President does not realize that this is one of the things the American people will not permit him or any other President to do. Notwithstanding the clarity with which that was demonstrated, he is strangely convinced that the people were over-whelmingly with him and his plans were frustrated by a few ignorant and iniquitous men.

IT IS HIS VIEW that the Senators who opposed his bill went against the will of their constituents; that he is the one true representative of the people who alone knows what they want and what is good for them. It is remarkable that any man can get himself into this frame of mind, but those who know Mr. Roosevelt personally know that this belief in his own rectitude and wisdom has always been typical of him. More than anything else this was the trait which gave so many of his earlier friends a distaste for him as a young man. With the popularity, prestige and power that was his in his first term as President this feeling about himself has been greatly strengthened and developed. It is the kind of belief well calculated to build him up with the indiscriminating masses and is, of course, accepted by the jobholders and favor seekers, but it does not endear him to independent people capable of a detached view—quite the contrary.

LONG AFTER Mr. Roosevelt has passed from the scene his effort to seize control of the judicial branch of the Government will remain the outstanding thing about his administrations. Other things he tried and did or failed to do will be forgotten, but his ultimate place in history will be fixed largely by the accounts of the battle between him and the court which began in his first term, ran through his second and flavored both. These being the facts, the reasons Mr. Roosevelt

TO BUILD ANOTHER THEATRE HERE AT MILL AND RADCLIFFE

A. and L. Sablosky Purchase
Property Formerly Owned
By Lewis J. Bevan

NOW PREPARING PLANS

House Will Be Modern, With Seating Capacity of 1,000

Moving picture theatres in Bristol will soon be like the taprooms—one on every corner—if the houses now in prospect materialize. Today it was announced that a new playhouse is to be erected on what is generally referred to as the Lewis J. Bevan property, Mill and Radcliffe streets.

Work is now in progress demolishing the Riverside Theatre, Market and Radcliffe street, where a new theatre is also to be erected, according to an announcement made this week. Both houses are being built by opposing interests and evidently there is a "war" brewing in the moving picture business in Bristol.

Today, Edward Lynn, manager of the Grand Theatre, Bristol's lone picture house, announced that A. and L. Sablosky, have purchased the property at Mill and Radcliffe streets from the Bucks County Mortgage Company, Langhorne, and that a modern theater would be erected on the site at once.

"Architects have been commissioned to prepare plans," said Mr. Lynn, "for a modern, up-to-date, fire-proof theater." It is planned to have the house ready for opening before Christmas.

The Sablosky interests operate the Grand theatre which has a seating capacity of about 1500. The new theater will accommodate 1,000. "There will be ample parking space at the new house," Mr. Lynn says.

The new theater will be called "Bristol Theatre" and it will be modern in every respect and particular. The very latest improvements in moving picture houses will be installed and both the exterior and interior will be as attractive as modern architects can make them.

Questioned as to the reason for opening another house in Bristol Mr. Lynn says that it will afford an opportunity to show more major pictures than can be done at only the Grand.

It is anticipated that with the completion of the new house that all of the major pictures can be shown in Bristol and that the very latest of this form of entertainment will be available to the public.

There are to be improvements made in the outside lighting equipment at the Grand. Neon lights are to replace the flashing bulbs which now decorate the front of the building.

Earlier, this week, it was announced by Michael H. Egnal, Philadelphia, that interests which he represents, had purchased the Riverside Theatre property and would erect on the site a modern theatre seating 800 people, and that the house would open in December or January. The Egnal interests now operate the "Broadway" in Bridgeport, Pa.

Previous to the Egnal interests acquiring the Riverside Theatre property, it had been leased by the Grand Amusement Company, operators of the Grand Theatre.

DANGER FROM GLARE

Headlight glare as one of the most serious hazards of motoring has been revealed by the operation of the new safety test trailer of the Keystone Automobile Club of Philadelphia. Equipped with elaborate driver-testing apparatus, this device has been kept constantly busy over a long period by the club officials, who report that very few motorists were able to make "average" in the glare test.

The inability of drivers to see objects on the highway through the lights of approaching vehicles looms large as a factor in accidents at night, the club's engineers announce after a summary of the tests. It is obvious that slower night driving is imperative, if reduction is to be made in highway casualties. The driver whose vision is limited in the face of approaching headlights must learn to keep the speed of his car within that vision limitation. Proper focus of beams is another necessity.

With the use of the safety trailer, tests have been given in mental reaction, steering skill, color vision, field of vision and ability to estimate distances. The glare test stimulates ideal highway conditions, with properly focused headlights, figures of pedestrians sharply outlined and other favorable conditions, yet those examined made a low score.

The score would be lower still under actual highway conditions with powerful lights poorly focused and shooting through their beams into the eyes of drivers coming from the opposite direction.

DEBT FIGURES

The Federal debt now exceeds $37,000,000,000, a new high. Since July 1, the Treasury's excess of disbursements over receipts was $326,000,000. New borrowing swelled debt at the rate of $100,000,000 a week during July and August.

Although the Treasury must raise a billion more in September, $817,400,000 will refinance obligations due September 15 and not be new debt. The September askings for new money are expected not to exceed $150,000,000. A continuing cause of debt increase lies in the notes issued against imports of gold, the "sterilizing" process.

On the other face of the Nation's financial picture, there are to be the September 15 receipts from income taxes and larger receipts from repayments of Federal loans, to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other Government lenders. The Treasury foresees a more even break from this time on, throughout the fiscal year, of income and outgo. President Roosevelt is declared insistent on "freezing" $400,000,000 by setting it aside for budget-balancing purposes, from the appropriations made by Congress for the Government departments.

The magnitude of the Federal financial figures should be truly realized from time to time. The huge debt has risen and is rising. With Congress and its discussions gone, the serious financial case takes an unobscured position at Washington as the major problem for the Administration to solve.

KNOW YOUR STATE

By F. A. PITKIN

Penna. State Planning Board

The growing of trees for lumber is important, but in recent years the use of forests for recreation has become of almost equal importance. It is an interesting thing that forests, which men once considered their enemies, should now have become their refuge from civilization. It seems that the more tied to the cities men grow by the necessity of earning a living, the more eager they are to spend their spare time in hunting, fishing, camping, and outdoor life, as their ancestors did.

Forests serve several purposes at once. While they are growing and producing timber, they also protect water supplies, help to control erosion, serve as breeding places and shelters for game, and provide recreation for men, women, and children.

Pennsylvania, having exhausted her finest forests, now uses more than twice as much lumber as she grows. This means that we must buy wood grown in other sections, chiefly the northwestern and southern states. Naturally, lumber that is shipped long distances costs more than that which is grown nearby. It would cost Pennsylvania less in the long run to plant new forest trees than to pay the high freight rates on lumber from far away.

If Pennsylvania used wood as economically as do such European countries as England and France, she could get along on her present home-grown wood supply, for the State still produces about 29 cubic feet of wood a year for each inhabitant, which is nearly twice the per capita wood consumption of England and 50 per cent more than that of France. More than twice this much, or 89 cubic feet for each inhabitant, is actually used in Pennsylvania, however. This means that Pennsylvania's per capita wood consumption is more than four times as much as England's and three times that of France.

The United States as a whole uses wood even more rashly than does Pennsylvania, at the rate of 134 cubic feet for each person. Pennsylvanians and other Americans have not yet recovered, apparently, from the pioneers' idea that the wood is inexhaustible.

Paper manufacturing and building construction are outstanding among the Pennsylvania industries dependent upon wood. Wood is also used in large quantities for boxes, barrels, caskets, furniture, charcoal, wood alcohol, and mine timbers, and for numerous other purposes. The future existence of all these industries will be much more secure when Pennsylvania's reforestation program has reached the point where their supply of raw materials can be secured from within the State.

FASHION PARADE

By Orry-Kelly

(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Arguments will arise, and quite frequently too, about Hollywood's place as a fashion center. Critics will say the cinema capital is far behind New York and Paris in this respect. But the fact remains that the movies continue to be Miss and Mrs. America's fashion guide. The stage cannot set the fashion pace, for plays are not attended by the general public, whereas movies are.

A series of early films started the "boyish" vogue when women all over the country tried to achieve the flat-bosom, hipless silhouette and the short bob. Strenuous dieting and exercising accomplished the first, and the snip-snip of a barber's scissors did the other. Clara Bow came along and started the flapper age.

Corsets and girdles were absolutely passe for a long time until Mae West and the lamented Jean Harlow once more glorified curves, and soon flat chests and narrow hips were as passe as the corsets had been. Now a woman spends as much time selecting the correct foundation garment as she does selecting the right shade of powder and rouge or a becoming dress.

Femininity returned in full force and has remained for several seasons. And why? Because of the revival of historical stories by Hollywood's leading industry—the movies. Pretty, and certainly feminine, is Olivia de Havilland, who has played in a series of period pictures: "Anthony Adverse," "Captain Blood," "Charge of the Light Brigade," and at present is working in "The Great Garrick" (eighteenth century) opposite Brian Aherne. In all these she has worn the gowns of the picturesque past. And although modern Miss and Mrs. America did not immediately put on hoop skirts and bustles, the decided trend to more feminine clothes and ways began as Hollywood made its gesture toward yeast-year. Stylists and designer copied little details here and there from the above mentioned and other period films of the past few seasons. Not only are little details of gowns adapted to present day styles, but various accessories, such as pocketbooks, brooches, collar effects and so forth, are copied for today's wear.

Blouses took a leap into the limelight, after a long period of almost obscurity, when Kay Francis, in several of her many pictures were several becoming ones with tailored suits.

So Hollywood, through the medium of the movies alone, to say nothing of the parade of original Hollywood styles in all the leading dining and dancing places, has its world-wide say-so in the fashion sphere.

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—The dog days of summer being with us, the question immediately arises "How to keep cool, yet look smart?"

For years that question has been arising. For years there has been only one answer.

Dress simply. Nothing looks worse than a dress of intricate cut, topped by a trimmed-up hat, fancy shoes and spotty use of color in accessories.

Plan your outfit so that it causes no confusion to the eye. Select your accessories so that they tone in with the color of your dress. In other words, if the top of your outfit is one color, and the lower part another, match your hat to the top, and your shoes to the skirt.

Bette Davis left town recently, after finishing "It's Love I'm After." She was off for a quiet resort where she could get in some golf. She looked cool and crisp, though the thermometer hovered around the ninety mark.

Her dress, of navy blue linen, was cut on shirtmaker lines. The buttons, which marked the front closing were large, flat and covered with self material.

Topping the dress, she wore a bolero jacket of white linen, with perky blue kerchief tucked in the breast pocket.

Her large white linen cartwheel was air conditioned with cut-out interlocking circles at the top of the crown. Her shoes were navy blue linen pumps.

The general outline was simple and restful to the eye of the beholder as well as being comfortable to the wearer.

For nothing looks hotter than a costume which resembles a jumbled-up jig-saw puzzle.

HELPFUL HINTS

"Eat moderately of easily-digested foods" is one of the ten vital health hints for hot weather publicized by a prominent medical authority.

One of the popular mixed salads served as the "Chef's Special" at a New York City hotel is made up of chicken, cut in dainty, match-like strips, tomatoes cut in wedges, other wedges of alligator pear, sliced eggs, Swiss cheese cut in small dice and bits of boiled ham. Hot rolls are served with this full-meal salad.

N. Y. SEES "CAREER MEN"

NEW YORK — (INS) — New York's civil service will pay a premium for education if a resolution sponsored by the Municipal Civil Service Commission is adopted. The commission recommends college men be started on the city payroll at higher wages than other applicants. "Career men" would be encouraged under the plan.

TOKYO — (INS) — The North China-Japanese war crisis proved a boon to labor leaders here in settling disputes. Pressure of the national emergency brought victory to 700 employees of a local bus and street car line. A hospital employees' strike was hurriedly settled by police during the aggravated period.

TIMELY RECIPES YOU WILL WANT TO TRY

Tender Corn

Tender sweet corn on the cob, plentifully buttered! What could be finer. Just try this cooking method:

Boil the corn in two parts of water and one part evaporated milk, to which a little salt has been added. Fresh young corn should cook in about ten minutes.

The same cooking method may be applied to kernels sliced off the cob for the convenience of junior diners and their grandparents. Serve the creamy kernels in plenty of butter. Don't throw away the diluted evaporated milk in which the corn is cooked—it makes a nourishing and flavorful base for a cream vegetable soup.

Tomato Aspic

Fresh recipes for tomato aspic salad, so good with any meat, are always in demand. This one calls for deviled eggs and ripe olives and may be served with a mustard salad dressing, rather than mayonnaise.

One No. 2 can tomatoes, one package aspic, or four teaspoons gelatin, softened in a little of the tomato juice; six deviled eggs, small can minced ripe olives.

Press tomatoes through a sieve. Heat juice to the boiling point, adding one clove of garlic while juice is being heated, if this flavor is liked. Add package of aspic, or the softened gelatin. Pour a little of the tomato-gelatin mixture into a mold that has been rinsed with cold water. When this has jelled, place on it the deviled eggs, yolks sides down. Arrange minced ripe olives, or shredded coconut around eggs and pour on remainder of the gelatin mixture. Set in a cold place until jelled. To unmold, dip mold in hot water and invert on cold platter. Garnish with watercress or lettuce hearts. For individual molds, it is preferable to slice the eggs.

Raspberry Shrubs

There is nothing more refreshing than this refreshing drink, which is an old-time and a modern favorite, because it may be always kept on hand for emergency. Frequent requests have been received for this recipe, which is still timely, with the late crop of raspberries on hand.

Three quarts raspberries, one and one-half quarts mild vinegar, sugar. Pick over and wash the raspberries. Crush them in a crock, or earthenware bowl. Add the vinegar, cover and let stand two days in a cold place. Strain and measure. To each pint of juice, add two cups of granulated sugar. Bring slowly to the boiling point and boil five minutes, skimming carefully. Turn into sterilized jars or bottles, filling them full to overflowing, and seal. When the time comes for a refreshing drink of raspberry shrub, use from two to three tablespoons of the fruit juices to a glass of fresh or charged water. Keep one jar of the juice in the icebox.

Raspberry Cooler

Raspberry shrub, raspberry ice and charged water. Measure two tablespoons of the raspberry shrub into each glass. Add one scoop of raspberry ice. Fill with charged water and serve.

Tasty Steak Sauce

One-half cup butter, two tablespoons ketchup, one tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, one teaspoon paprika, one-half teaspoon dry mustard, two tablespoons lemon juice, or vinegar. Combine ingredients, add drippings from steak or hamburger. Boil one minute and pour over the broiled or fried steak or hamburger.

Quick Coffee Cake

One and one-half cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, three-fourths cup sugar, two tablespoons butter, one egg, three-fourths cup milk (scant), and one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon.

Mix and sift dry ingredients, add well-beaten egg and milk, the melted butter. For the topping use: One tablespoon flour, one and one-half tablespoons butter, six tablespoons brown sugar, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon salt. Melt butter, blend flour, add sugar and cinnamon and spread on top of coffee cake. Add chopped walnuts or pecan halves if desired. Bake 25 minutes.

Peach Cream Pie

Line a pie dish with pastry. Blend one cup sugar and two tablespoons cornstarch. Spread three-fourths of the mixture over the pastry. Fill with canned or peeled fresh peach halves, hollow sides up.

Sprinkle with remaining sugar and cornstarch. Carefully pour in one-half pint cream, putting some in each hollow.

Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for 15 minutes, then reduce the heat to 350 degrees and bake until the peaches are tender and the cream thickens. This pie is wholesome and nourishing and should be chosen to top off a fairly light meal, when the meat is served cold.

Quick Upside-Down Cake

For a speedy upside down cake, cook a small package of prepared mince meat, as directed for pie, place it on the bottom of a pan and pour a plain cake batter over it. Bake and serve with maple syrup, or any desired lemon or pudding sauce.

Novel Appetizers

Six to eight novel appetizers may be prepared in this fashion: Select large prunes and steam them tender. Remove pits and stuff with a mixture of one tablespoon minced cherries, one tablespoon cooked rice, one tablespoon chopped chutney, one-eighth teaspoon each salt and paprika. Dip in Worcestershire sauce.

Then wrap each stuffed prune with a strip of bacon secured with a toothpick. Broil until the bacon is crisp and brown. Chilled tomato juice cocktail is an excellent choice with these.

Nut Sauce For Fish

Filet and many kinds of fish are excellent when served with a nut sauce, as the expert French cooks have discovered. Although a tartar sauce often is used with crabs, a nut sauce lends delicate flavor when made in this fashion:

One-half cup butter, one-half cup sliced Brazil nuts or almonds, one tablespoon lemon juice. Melt one tablespoon of the butter and brown the sliced nuts in it. When brown, add the remaining butter and lemon juice. Serve with broiled or fried fish.

Another method is to brown a few almonds or Brazil nuts in the butter after the crabs have finished cooking.

Crab Salad

Two cups flaked crab meat, one cup celery, cut in small pieces, Romano, watercress, or lettuce hearts, sliced tomatoes, sliced hard-cooked eggs.

Mix crab meat and celery with enough mayonnaise for flavor. Arrange on bed of greens and garnish with the tomatoes and egg slices. Dust with paprika.

Frank Hartman spent the week-end at Guilford Park, N. J.

LANDRETH SEEDS WIN OVER HOUSE OF DAVID

In the closing game of the twilight season Landreth Seeds defeated the House of David of Benton Harbor, Mich., 3-3, at Landreth hall park, last night, before the largest crowd of the season.

Turner Ashby on the mound for the "Farmers" gave a fine pitching performance in the first five innings holding the bewildered visitors to three hits and scoreless; then when the visitors seemed to be solving his delivery he was saved by some swell fielding on the part of Breslin, who had replaced Barcalow in center field for the home team in the fifth inning.

Griggs' hit, a sacrifice by Barrett and Deboskey's two base hit, gave the home team a run in the second inning.

Three were added in the fourth. Deboskey singled and was safe at second when Ashby's sacrifice bunt was thrown to second by Janesko, but too late to get the runner. Martin attempted to catch Ashby napping and threw wild. Deboskey scoring. Dougherty's two base hit scored Ashby and Lodge counted Dougherty with a single.

Breslin the first batter up in the home half of the seventh hit to deep left field for a home run to score the home team's fifth run.

Hits by Gustenberry and Luchi following a base on balls to Pierce gave the visitors their first score in the sixth inning, after two men were retired.

Two were out again in the seventh before the visitors scored, two runs counting on a base on balls to Janesko, Vann's safe bunt, Griggs' wild throw to third base and a single by Woods.

The fielding of Barrett, Sacony and Vann and the all around work of Breslin was the feature.

The game was stopped during the closing innings while the House of David put on an exhibition of their "pepper game" which was well worth the admission fee.

OPENS 'GRIDIRON COURSES' TO TEACH NEW RULES

HARRISBURG, Sept. 2.—(INS)—The Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association, governing body of schoolboy athletic activities in the State, today opens "gridiron courses" designed to familiarize those concerned with the newly-adopted National Federation of Interscholastic Football Rules.

The P. I. A. A., which had previously been governed by collegiate rules, has adopted the National Federation regulations for the first time for the 1937-38 season. A number of marked changes are noted in the two sets of regulations and the National Federation Rules. It was indicated, are designed to inject a further measure of safety to players in the gridiron sport.

Coincident with the instructions conference which opens this evening in the Forum of the State Education Building here, a round-table conference of all P. I. A. A. officials will be held here.

Edmund C. Wicht, secretary of the P. I. A. A., announced that eight similar regional conferences will be held throughout the state to outline the Federation rules. He urged that superintendents, principals, faculty managers, coaches and the general public attend.

In the West-Central area, officials of the P. I. A. A. will meet at Altoona tomorrow. The illustrative clinic will be held by the kickers may be declined.

A foul occurring after the ball is out of bounds between the goal lines, is considered a foul between downs since the ball was dead before the foul happened; strict enforcement of penalty for tacking a runner who is out of bounds is made mandatory; if a ball is touched simultaneously by two opposing players and goes out of bounds it is awarded the opponents of the team last in possession of the ball; a lineman who has been legally shifted to the backfield may return in a subsequent quarter; coming to a stop is a prerequisite in making a fair catch.

initiated this warfare and at great damage to himself pursued it long after it was clear he could not win, are interesting and important so far as the historians of the future are concerned.

IT SEEMS certain that the writers of the Roosevelt history will agree upon two of these reasons. One is the personal character and qualities of the President; the other, is the so-called Humphrey case, now almost forgotten and never given the publicity it deserved but actually the starting point of it all. As to the personal characteristics of Mr. Roosevelt and the part they have played in this fight, it is significant that recently some of his most devoted and admiring friends have begun to deplore in him certain traits which as a rule do not accompany either greatness of mind or of spirit. For example, Mr. Raymond Clapper, of the Scripps Howard papers, who at times has been almost lyrical in praise of the President, and is still his admiring friend, finds himself painfully confessing that "back of the smile he has a vindictive streak." Another ardent friend—Gen. Hugh Johnson—once on such terms of personal and official intimacy as to be called "The Assistant President," ascribes Mr. Roosevelt's persistence in his pursuit of the Court to "biting stubbornness," "injured pride" and a desire to make his opponents "eat dirt."

REMEMBER, please, that these personal remarks concerning Mr. Roosevelt's nature and motives come not from personal or political enemies or critics of the President but from his supporting friends. If that is what they think of him in this business it ought to be pretty well accepted by the rest of us. These are not men who seek to disparage or want to damage him. On the contrary, they are anxious to see him regain his prestige and sense of proportion. They supported him in 1932 and 1936 and would be supporting him now if he would make it possible. They have been sympathetic with his policies and until the last session found little to criticize, much to extol. Yet, one of them now brands him as vindictive, which is not a pretty thing for a President to be, and the other declares that he is pursuing an unsound and mistaken course, sure to lead to disaster for himself and harm for the country, because his pride has been injured.

WHAT THIS amounts to is a direct accusation that in a determination to continue his fight against the Court the President is inspired neither by patriotism nor by any thought of the public good, but is now impelled by an unworthy desire to "get even" with those who have stood in his way and is filled with resentment over his reverse. If this view of him came from his opponents it might be discounted, but coming from men whose personal and political friendship with him is close and their predilections all favorable, it does seem that the historian is bound to accept it as one of the reasons behind the battle.

As to the Humphrey case—the other reason, which, in a way, involves the first—the facts about it will be recalled in another article.

Views almost beyond the power of the artist's brush to duplicate, unfold in breath-taking panoramas as we ride by automobile or train, or hike through any section of this Commonwealth.

More especially is this true in the Fall of the year when the foliage presents a changing spectacle of colors. Leaves turning to a burnished gold glitter against the backgrounds of evergreens.

In other words, as we say, in the slogan we are broadcasting over the Nation — "Pennsylvania Has Everything."

There is interest, enjoyment, education and profit for all the school children and all the adults in this great undertaking.

Places to go that we have read about in history books. Things to do that we have always wanted to do, but seldom get around to doing.

We can hunt—as we surely will do by the thousands when the season opens—we can fish—along the trails and in the streams that pioneers, and the Indians before them, hunted and fished.

And at the same time absorb the atmosphere and learn the lore and background of these different regions.

I sometimes believe that in the hustle and bustle of our modern life we are too much inclined to overlook these things.
